

Press Release PR340

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Is there a Geoffrey in the house?

A fantastic opportunity has arisen for a talented 40+ year old male actor to be part of Banbury Cross Players' 2015-2016 Season Opening production of Alan Ayckbourn's comedy Absurd Person Singular.

Set in three separate kitchens over three Christmases, the play follows the fortunes of three wildly incompatible couples charting the relentless rise of the socially aspiring Hopcrofts at the expense of two other couples.

Geoffrey Jackson is a confident, almost flashy, architect, something of a Jack-the-Lad and a serial womanizer. Initially on the way up, Geoffrey is destined to fall from grace after a building he designed collapses. By the third act, he is an utterly broken man: his confidence and charisma have been dashed by his career grinding to a halt.

This uproarious, agonisingly funny comedy is to be performed at The Mill Arts Centre, Banbury, 21-24 October 2015. Rehearsals are two nights a week with some Sunday afternoons.

If you think you are just what BCP are looking for to fill Geoffrey's shoes, please contact director, Brenda Williams via contactus@banburycrossplayers.org.uk or 01295 271345 as soon as possible.

More about Banbury Cross Players can be seen at <http://banburycrossplayers.org.uk/> or <https://www.facebook.com/BanburyCrossPlayers/> or <https://twitter.com/bcptheatre>